

Kara Gniewek, CVT

Kara entered the veterinary field after spending the first part of her professional life in museums. She has a B.A. in Cultural Anthropology and a M.A. in American Indian Studies. For the past 10 years she has served as a technician in general practice, emergency/critical care, specialty, and sanctuary/rescue settings. She is currently the Program Coordinator for Rural Area Veterinary Services (RAVS). Working with RAVS is the ideal synthesis of her career experience and all that is closest to her heart. When Kara is not in the field, she can be found exploring the wild with her family of German Shepherd Dogs.
