

Stacie Boswell, DVM, DACVS-LA

Dr. Stacie Boswell is a veterinarian with over a decade of clinical experience and board-certified in large animal surgery. Through her educational experience, she has developed a broad perspective of the diversity of horse management practice throughout North America. She is certified in Technical Large Animal Emergency Rescue™. Dr. Boswell is also attentive to horse behavior because mental health is a critical part of a horse's overall well-being; she is Fear Free™ certified, serves on the Fear Free Advisory Group, and is the author of three Equine Fear Free continuing education modules. Dr. Boswell's special interest in rescue horses led her to write the only consolidated resource containing specific guidelines on caring for needy equines. Her book, The Ultimate Guide for Horses in Need has information about medical care as well as horse behavior and how they are integrated when horses are transitioned to new homes and rehabilitated.